WILLIAMSTOWN.

Miss Ethel Odum is at her home in North Sanborn, N. H.

Mrs. J. Parker and son, Lloyd, of Barre are visiting at the home of Isaac Recor.

Warren Greenason and his two children propose to take a vacation in Marshfield next week.

Mrs. W. E. Randall proposes to take a vacation from her usual labors through the month of August.

Mrs. Mary Beckett Simons, now of Washington, Ia., will remain here through the month of August.

Mrs. B. P. Sibley is in the family of Mrs. J. E. Ainsworth caring for the aged Mrs. Caroline Ainsworth Waterman.

We have recently been told by a relative of Jerry Field that the family will move back to this place from Bethel ere long.

Tracy L. Jofford's daughter of Washington, D. C., has been taking a vacation here in the family of Russell M. Jofford.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Field of Northfield and Miss Lillian Field of Northampton, Mass., were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Randall.

Mrs. Emma Staples Hutchinson is visiting her married daughter in Woodstock. She will also go to her son's in Weston before she returns home.

Carpenters Henry Poole, John A. Perry and Frank I. Godfrey are fitting up the store in the granite block for the occupancy of Mr. Kenyon of Barre City.

If all the world of pleasure seekers knew the enjoyment gotten out of our beautiful Vermont scenery by recent visitors here, there would be a rush for Vermont, surely.

In addition to his large coal business in Moline, Ill., our old townsman, Rufus Walker, and a son are engaged in the manufacture of automobiles in that busy manufacturing city.

George, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Deussen Martin and for many years a resident of Washington, D. C., will come up here in time for the September election, when he will take a vacation with old friends here.

The Ladies' Home Study club had a meeting the first of the week with Mrs. George May, to arrange for a program of study for the coming year. It seems to us a wonderful record of study that this club has made in a score or more years past.

We clip the following from a St. Cloud, Minn., paper, concerning the daughter of our former townsfolk, Dr. George E. and Mrs. Carrie Hill Maloy:

"Dr. and Mrs. George E. Maloy have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Agnes Catherine, to George A. Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Moore, the marriage to occur some time in the coming autumn. Miss Maloy is a graduate of the St. Cloud high school, has spent one year at Smith college and this spring received her A. B. degree from the university of Minnesota. She is young lady with many accomplishments and during her college career played a very prominent part in social and dramatic circles. Mr. Moore is the assistant cashier of the First National bank and is one of the most prominent young men of the city. The many friends of Miss Maloy and Mr. Moore will receive the announcement of their engagement with pleasure and will extend congratulations and best wishes for a brilliant and happy future."

MARSHFIELD.

The usual Sunday services will occur at the Methodist church next Sabbath.

Miss Ella Wilson of Hardwick is visiting her cousin, Amy Cameron, this week.

Mrs. William Young of Franklin, N. H., is renewing acquaintances, and visiting relatives in town for several weeks.

Frank H. Brown, who has been ill of a complication of diseases for several weeks, is able to sit up a short time each day.

Newton Fisher of Randolph, who has been at the home of his uncle, D. K. Lucas, two weeks, returned to his home Thursday.

Mrs. Frank E. Brown has been very ill with grip; Miss Stone, a trained nurse, has been caring for her. She is reported more comfortable.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Newton of Harwood, North Dakota, are visiting friends and relatives in this and nearby towns, expecting to remain several weeks.

Mrs. A. T. Davis is in Rochester and Bethel for a visit with friends and at the home of her father, E. W. McWain. Miss Ruby has been there several days, and George went with Mrs. Davis.

The grand chief of the order of Pythian Sisters will visit the local order, Myrtle temple, next Friday evening, the 9th.

Myrtle temple of Montpelier and Danville Green temple of Danville will visit them at the same time. Refreshments will be served in the banquet room at 7 o'clock, with a banquet at the close of the meeting. Let every member drive to be present. The degrees of this order will be conferred upon a lady and knight.

Mr. and Mrs. John Breen were pleasantly surprised the evening of July 20, by over 30 of their friends, who reminded them of the 30 years of married life already fled. The crowd found the host away on a business trip to town, the son much in evidence by his (intentional) absence and the hostess having passed an unusually busy day had already retired. After the usual fun of a genuine surprise party, a genuine good time was enjoyed by all. Mr. and Mrs. Breen wish to thank all for the many kind wishes, etc.

IF STEEL, WHY NOT COPPER?

What Can Be Said in Favor of a Combination to Regulate Prices.

The steel industry is in control of one large corporation and several smaller independent concerns, which to a certain degree act together in controlling production and prices. Within a certain price range there is competition, but the old-fashioned method of unlimited production and slashing of prices until numbers of concerns are forced into bankruptcy has been displaced by regulation within price limits which are not so low as to bankrupt established concerns and never so high as to draw in a superfluous amount of new capital.

This may be a wrong and intolerable arrangement, but it exists in the steel industry, and if good for the steel industry and tolerable to the public, why not also for the copper industry? Those therefore in the copper industry who favor a resort to more artificial methods of controlling production and prices do not have to invent their argument. They can borrow one already made and used through years of discussion to justify the situation in the steel industry created by the formation and conservative conduct of the United States Steel corporation. As against the old-fashioned method of regulation, it can be said that on the whole the public employed low prices only at intervals and later lost in unduly high prices what had been gained from unduly low prices. After over-production had forced prices down, where many mines had to close, then would come a rush of prices up to such a level as was reached in 1906 and early in 1907, which operated not only to open the closed mines, but to start new development in a hundred directions at once. And so the industry has swung back and forth from one undue extreme to another.

If, on the other hand, the industry should fall under such an arrangement as obtains in the steel industry—if it were divided among half a dozen powerful concerns which should undertake to hold production where, as at 15 cents, prices would yield a profit on the mass of the output, but would not be high enough to stimulate a great rush of new capital into the discovery and development of new mines—the consumer in the long run might be quite as well off as before in the enjoyment of more stable conditions, while a situation would be created that might seem fairer to capital engaged in production. The industry would at least be less of a great gamble than it is now. At all events, it can be said with certainty that as long as such arrangements are allowed in other industries they cannot consistently and fairly be prohibited to the copper mining industry—Springfield Republican.
